

進路調査票を前に、ため息の放課後。図書室の古い詩集から、一枚の紙が落ちた。 音声を聞きながら読もう (約2分・登場人物ごとに声が変わります)。

After school. The library. Saki and Kenta sat with their career forms. The forms were still white.

Kenta: "Your dream for the future." ... I have nothing. Saki, have you ever had a real dream?

Saki: I don't know. Everyone says, "You are a third-year student now." That's all I know.

Saki reached for an old poetry book on the top shelf. Then, a piece of paper fell from it.

Saki: What's this? ... "My 30 Challenges — Before Graduation." And a date. It was written in 2006.

Kenta: Twenty years ago! Look, number one: "Watch the sunrise from the school roof." There's a check mark.

Saki: Number two, check. Number three, check ... Kenta, twenty-nine challenges have check marks.

Kenta: Twenty-nine out of thirty? Then the last one ...

They looked at number thirty. But the ink was thin and spread. They couldn't read the words.

Saki: The last challenge ... is a mystery. Who wrote this? And did this person finish number thirty?
